this stately, 1924 English manor house revival in Hancock Park is the perfect property for those looking for a location that meets both an urban and suburban setting. Restored in 2008, the 2,696 square foot house has all the tenets of a formal period revival built during the Southern California land boom of the 1920s. Access from the front of the home is gained through a large, four-centered, clinker brick archway, a theme that is also repeated in the outdoor fireplace and the Batchelder tile fireplace of the great room. Designed with a center hall floor plan, the formal dining room, and the great room on either side of the hallway with their oak floors with a classic, dark walnut inlaid border offers a glimpse of what is in store for visitors as they enter the rest of the house. French doors which provide direct access to the outdoor kitchen, backyard, outdoor fireplace, and saltwater pool and spa, all of which, of course, provide the perfect environment
